option of selecting one of Trane's higher efficiency systems. High-end products are more energy efficient, so utility bills may be significantly reduced.

Trane's high efficiency products also carry a ten-year limited warranty on the compressor and coil as compared to a five-year limited warranty on the basic systems.

The Trane XLI product families all have a ten-year limited parts warranty. And when you install a complete system the gas furnace or air handler, coil and thermostat are also covered for ten-years.

The Basic Package.

Builders do a great job in selecting the basic heating and air conditioning system for their new homes. The basic system usually includes a 10.00 SEER efficiency system which is the minimum standard set by the Federal Government today.

This basic system could include Trane's XB10 air conditioner along with an 80% AFUE gas furnace or possibly a heat pump with Trane's standard air handler.

Trane's quality and craftsmanship has been built into all the components of Trane's system such as the Climatuff® compressor, Spine Fin coil, precision balanced fan blades, Powder Paint Finish, fully protected louvers and corrosion resistant screws.
